

PREVENTION MESSAGE

If you flick your cigarette butt, you run the risk of causing a fire...

During the summer season, a lot of hikers and other outdoor enthusiasts will be heading to the forest. Even if you decide to take an impromptu stroll in a wooded area near your home, it is still important to follow the exact same safety rules as those for a well-planned stay in a tourist site.

You want to smoke?

- ✓ Stop in a clearing.
- ✓ Before getting back on the trail, extinguish your cigarette butt by wetting it, stubbing it out against a rock or burying it in the sand.

Section 138 of the Forest Act states:

"No person may smoke in or near the forest from 1 April to 15 November while working or travelling, except in a building or a closed vehicle."

Attention quad riders... It is strictly forbidden to smoke while riding on an all-terrain vehicle!
